"Paragraftan sonraki 3 soruyu parçaya göre cevaplayınız."

Immigration is the act of coming to a foreign country to live. The act of leaving one's country to settle in another is called emigration. Immigrants who flee their country because of persecution, war, or such disasters as famines or epidemics are known as refugees or displaced persons. Most people find it very hard to pull up roots in their native land and move to a strange country. But throughout history, countless millions of people have done so. The heaviest immigration worldwide took place from the early 1800's to the Great Depression, the economic hard times of the 1930's. In that period, about 60 million people moved to a new land. Most came from Europe. More than half emigrated to the United States. Other destinations included Canada, Argentina, Brazil, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa. Today, the availability of fast, safe, and cheap transportation helps make migration easier. Asia is replacing Europe as the major immigrant-sending area. The United States remains the chief receiving nation.

The passage indicates that the United States

- a) has always been the largest receiving nation of immigrants in the modern World
- b) was only the largest immigrant-receiving nation during the Great Depression era
- c) has not receive much immigration when compared to Asia
- d) used to be the largest immigrant-receiving nation until recently
- e) replaced Europe as the largest immigrant-receiving nation

The writer of the passage clearly believes that immigration is

- a) a very hard and slow process because of laws and regulations
- b) difficult to define in today's world because of many new methods of travel
- c) difficult because people are unfamiliar with an entirely new country
- d) on the increase as the United States has passed laws making it easier to be a citizen
- e) limited to the western world and its inhabitants

The largest amount of immigrant movement occurred ----.

- a) immediately after the Great Depression
- b) when Asia became the main immigrant-sender
- c) in recent times due to advances in cheap travel
- d) in the early 1800s and before the Great Depression
- e) in between the early 1800s and the Great Depression
